EDITOR'S COMMENTS

As summer was slipping into fall, many in the radio collecting community were hitting the trail for the big events of the year— Radiofest '96 in Elgin, Ill., and the Antique Wireless Association's 35th Historical Radio Conference in Rochester, N.Y. This year the schedule of these events crossed with the mailing of this issue of A.R.C. As a result, many of you were probably on the road before the delivery of your magazine, unless the post office performed an unlikely miracle, or you made an arrangement with a carrier pigeon.

But, think of it this way — those of you who had to stay home could take comfort in your first chance at all the goodies in this issue. Those at the events could browse through the flea markets instead and perhaps make a great find.

Our lead article this month is Alan Douglas' sixth contribution on tube testers, which covers laboratory test equipment, and which afforded us the opportunity to use a vintage photo of an RCA test setup on our cover. This photo provokes thoughts about how different a tube testing laboratory looks today. Technicians of yesteryear would be awed by the digital displays and automatic computer testing equipment which are the norm.

Ian Sanders' fine series of foreign set articles continues with the novelty book crystal set radio by the British firm Kenmac. This book-shaped radio, which was "bound" in either leather or tortoise shell, is titled "The Listener" on the spine.

Dan Merz writes about an interesting 8-tube superheterodyne set that he purchased at a swap meet. This set's uniqueness comes from the intricate metal work of its construction. Even the tube shields are of machined aluminum. Dan seeks information on the origins of the set and/or its design. Has anyone out there seen this set in the flesh or in a vintage construction article?

Meet and auction news comes from Timonium, Maryland, and Cologne, Germany. Larry Babcock, Pat Lindfield, and Steve Snyderman combine to give a detailed report on the Mid-Atlantic Antique Radio Club's Radioactivity '96 on June 13-15. Let's hope that Larry's interesting stroll through the flea market encourages collectors who haven't been to a meet to break away and get to their first meet somewhere. Highlights from a 379-lot auction round out the report.

A report on Auction Team Köln's June 7th auction of over 300 radio items in Germany reminds us that our collecting world continues to expand. It is unusual to find so many U.S. sets at a European auction. Interest and absentee bidding from the U.S. were strong, and a number of the U.S. sets found their way back home.

The prices for some items seemed high; for example, a Westinghouse RA/DA sold for $546, whereas this set has been advertised from $200 to $350 in our classifieds. Other sets seemed to be bargains, such as a Federal 57 for $468 and a Kennedy 281 receiver with its 521 amplifier for $585. These items are listed in Bunis for $575 and $975 respectively.

The two transmitter books recently published — Ray Moore's Transmitters, Exciters & Power Amplifiers, and Eugene Rippen's Tube Type Transmitter Guide — are reviewed by Ray Bintliff. Although the two books do have much in common, each book includes areas that the other does not. The conclusion for transmitter enthusiasts is that "both books should be in your library."

A couple of short articles of interest are also included this month — Jim Leckrone's suggestions on packing Catalins for shipping and Gerald Cromer's report on another Mickey Mouse radio.

Photo Review includes sets from Giblin, Philco, Automatic Radio, Echophone and E.H. Scott. A 15-inch diameter loop antenna and a radio novelty toothpick holder round out the offerings. And Radio Miscellanea includes several past Photo Review identifications, as well as feedback on Hugo Gernsback and on Schoo's soldering article.

Coming Radio Events. As mentioned earlier, the two big events of the radio collecting year are upon us — Radiofest '96, August 28-31, and AWA's 35th Historical Radio Conference, September 4-7. A.R.C. will be at both events and plans to report on them in the November issue. If you make it to either of them, I hope you will stop by and say "hi."

But, these are not the only events for the collector in the coming weeks. Forty other events in September, from California to Connecticut and from Texas to Canada, are listed in our Coming Radio Events pages. And for the more adventurous of you, a trip to the British Vintage Wireless Society's 20th Anniversary Event in England might be the thing for September 21-22.

Again, I encourage all of you to go out of your way if necessary to get to a collector event. There you'll have a chance to see firsthand some of the items and the people that you know only through magazines, club newsletters and books.

Happy Collecting!

DISPLAY AND BUSINESS CARD ADS – DETAILS AND RATES

The deadline is the first of the month for display and business card ad artwork, payment and repeat requests.

Advertising is accepted only for early items related to radio, communication, etc. All items must be described fairly; reproductions, reprints and not-original items must be so identified. Advertisers must agree to respond promptly to inquiries and orders, to resolve problems promptly if the buyer is not satisfied, and to comply with a buyer's refund request on unaltered returned items.

Advertising must be prepaid, except as noted below; see "Payment" paragraph above for details. Late ads will be run only if space and time permit. Since artwork is reduced to 63% in the printing process, originals must be the artwork size listed below. Do not send in artwork on art board or send negatives. Ads should be typeset or typed neatly with a carbon ribbon, black ink (not pencil) on white. If used, reverse type must be limited to 25% of the ad. If you want us to prepare your ad, include the one-time cost below for A.R.C. to make up the ad.

Photos should be at an 85-line screen; otherwise, add $14.00 per photo for screening. Do not cut or trim photos or glue photos to artwork; submit separately.

If you are confused by these requirements and terms, please contact A.R.C. before beginning to prepare your ad. We will be happy to advise you on your ad ideas, estimate how much the ad will cost, recommend an ad size, etc.

We assume that advertisers want all ads which are submitted to run without delay; therefore, we will run the ad and bill for any additional work required for the ad to meet these specifications. A late ad will run beginning with the next month. "Tear sheets" will be sent only for 1/8-page or larger ads and only if requested when the ad is submitted.

First business card per advertiser is at lower rate.

The 3-month rates represent about an 11% discount, the 6-month rates 23%, the 12-month rates 30%. Placement requests: add 15% but call first. Clubs: write for discount policy.

ON THE COVER

The old photo reproduced on our cover was contributed by Alan Douglas, who believes it to be the original photo used in the November 1928 IRE Proceedings. It can also be seen in the February 1929 issue of Radio Broadcast. The equipment pictured is a "Miller Bridge," a special bridge used in RCA's Van Cortlandt Park Laboratories in New York City for measuring the electrical characteristics of radio vacuum tubes.

Vintage Tube Testers — Part 6
Laboratory Tube Testers

BY ALAN S. DOUGLAS

This is the sixth in a series of articles by Alan Douglas on vintage tube testers. For easy reference, the previous articles appeared in the July, October, and December 1995 issues, and in the March and June1996 issues. (Editor)

The tube testers and instruments pictured in the previous articles were all servicemen's equipment, but manufacturers and laboratories had an entirely different range to work with. RCA, for instance, used the elaborate "Miller Bridge" in 1928 (IRE Proceedings, Nov. 1928), shown in Figure 1, and the General Radio Company produced laboratory bridges beginning in 1926. Bridge methods required balancing for an audible null in headphones, so they were rather slow; also, bridges did not contain their own power supplies or signal sources.

THE WESTON MODEL 686

Perhaps the ultimate production tube tester was the Weston Model 686. The original patents on this model date from 1930 and 1931, and it was being advertised by 1935. The U.S. Navy bought it under the designation "OD"; the OD-2 contract was awarded in 1937, and by late 1943 the OD-7 was produced. In 1951, the military services bought the updated version TV-8/USM-31, equivalent to the Weston Model 686 Type 9A. Finally in 1954, Weston revamped the instrument under the model number 686, Type 10A, shown in Figure 2.

All these instruments share the same power supply arrangement, metering, and a patch panel for connecting the tube elements, but the Gm (mutual conductance) measuring circuit in the 10A is considerably improved. The patch cords are, of course, rather tedious to set up, so you would never use this beast for routine testing, though if you're checking many tubes of the same type, the measurements can be fairly rapid. The 686 applies the correct DC voltages to all tube elements, puts a known 60 Hz signal on the grid, and measures the amplified current in the plate circuit.

The Weston 686 is in some demand nowadays, but it has its problems, not the least of which is its 105-pound weight. Its element voltages are all set by wirewound potentiometers across the main supply, entirely unregulated, and the pots themselves often open up from corrosion. The Type 10A does at least have regulated grid bias, as well as an internal amplifier to drive the meter without loading the plate circuit of the tube being tested.

MAKING YOUR OWN TUBE TESTER

It is perfectly feasible to make your own tube tester, using modern regulated power supplies, a stable audio oscillator, and an AC millivoltmeter reading out Gm. Figure 3 shows one such instrument, incorporating tube sockets, heater supply, patch cords for connections, screen and plate milliammeters, and a 10-ohm series plate resistor, which is transformer-coupled to the output jack for the Gm meter. Figure 4 is a diagram of the circuit for this tube tester.

The external power supplies, Hewlett-Packard oscillator, and Ballantine millivoltmeter (not pictured) are all flea market purchases over the past few years. It's not exactly compact, but it will do the job more accurately than any commercial tester. You could even use a hand-held DVM and get digital Gm readout.

Another warning about accuracy. It's easy to attach too much importance to this and assume that a tube's mutual conductance is a fixed property, like resistance or capacitance, measurable to any degree of accuracy. But the Gm can easily vary by 50 percent with choice of operating conditions, and a very few milliamps change in plate current can throw it way off. Two tube testers, each calibrated perfectly, will rarely give the same reading, since their operating conditions differ. As the saying goes, the man with one watch knows what time it is; the man with two is never sure.

(Alan S. Douglas, Box 225, Pocasset, MA 02559)

Alan Douglas, an electrical engineer, has written well over 100 articles for A.R.C. and other publications. His books, "Radio Manufacturers of the 1920's, Volumes 1, 2, and 3" are highly regarded resources for the radio collecting community.

Packaging Catalins for Shipping

BY JIM LECKRONE

Catalin radios are very fragile, so great care should be taken in preparing them for shipping. There is no foolproof method of guaranteeing their safe arrival, but this article describes the best method that I have found. It is also a good idea to check the "UPS Guidelines for Good Packaging" on page 15 of the January 1996 A.R.C.

Here are the steps to follow in shipping your fragile Catalin:

1. Carefully remove the chassis and wrap it in bubble wrap or other cushioning material. Place the wrapped chassis with packing peanuts in a box of sufficient size. Next, double-box the chassis and ship it separately from the cabinet. (Also see steps 3-5 for additonal hints.)

2. Remove the trim from the cabinet, and wrap it separately. Store it with peanuts surrounding it inside the cabinet.

3. Wrap the cabinet in bubble wrap — the larger the bubbles, the better the protection. And do not let the kids play with the bubble wrap before you use it. Snap, crackle, pop = crack!

4. Put the cabinet in a box with peanuts or other cushioning material. Make sure the cabinet cannot shift or move. Tape up the box with packaging tape.

5. Get a larger box with enough room to pack at least 2 inches of peanuts or other cushioning material around the smaller box on all sides. Put a piece of paper with to/from addresses inside the box (just in case). Tape up the box with packaging tape at least 2 inches wide.

Remember, UPS does not consider a 30-inch drop mishandling, and a 5-foot drop is not uncommon. So, pack well. Happy trading!

The Kenmac Book Crystal Set — A Novelty Radio

BY IAN L. SANDERS

"The 'Kenmac Book' crystal set, though novel in design, loses nothing in efficiency by being so, as it embodies in its design certain features which are absolutely essential if good reception of the Broadcasting Coy.'s Programmes is to be heard by the 'Listener' with the clarity of tone which undoubtedly makes 'Listening-in' a real pleasure." (From the Kenmac Book crystal set instruction book)

The idea of the novelty radio as a sales gimmick is almost as old as broadcasting itself. Because of their constructional simplicity, crystal sets were a natural choice for this market, and, from the early 1920s on, manufacturers offered novelty crystal sets in various guises.

Such crystal sets were produced on both sides of the Atlantic. Models built around pottery designs, for example, are known from both U.S. and British manufacturers (e.g. the Brush Pottery Company's "Bug" crystal set and the Grafton China Works' "Uncle Tom" set). Another classic is the miniature crystal set produced by Radiax Limited of London in 1923, which was built into a standard matchbox of the day.

Novelty crystal sets were also occasionally offered as promotional items with the ubiquitous "Quaker Oats" model made by the Marquette Radio Corporation in the U. S. as a prime example. An innovative theme was the so-called "talking book" radio, doubtless playing on the idea that listening-in should be afforded the same respectability as was given to reading. This article describes one such set — the Kenmac Book.

In addition, at least two U.S. makers and one other British manufacturer are known to have offered crystal sets disguised as books during the 1920s. Examples are the 1923 "Talking Book" crystal set, produced by the Listen-In Company of Boston, Massachusetts, and the 1925 Teletone Model C by the Teletone Corporation of America. In January 1921, Mitchell's of London advertised a primitive, but novel, crystal set called the "Wireless Pocket Book." Windings inside the covers acted as a variometer, with tuning effected by opening and closing the book.

THE KENMAC BOOK CRYSTAL SET

In mid-1925, at what was practically the end of the crystal set era in Great Britain, Kenmac Radio, Limited, of Hammersmith, West London, introduced its patented Kenmac Book crystal set. The receiver was in the form of a small book, measuring just 4¾" x 3½" x 1", shown in Figure 1. It was produced in two styles — an imitation tortoise-shell finish, and a less expensive model available in a red, green or blue leather "binding" with gilt-edged "pages." The tortoise-shell version and its original box are shown in Figure 2. This version was advertised, rather curiously, as non-inflammable. (One must suppose the number of instances of a crystal set actually igniting to be rather limited!).

The standard inscription imprinted on the front cover of both versions is "The LISTENER by E.R. Phone," with a more ornate typeface being used for the tortoise-shell model. Alternatively, the set could be supplied, "... at little or no extra cost," with any choice of personal customized lettering on the front cover. The base of the "spine" bears the company name — Kenmac Radio Ltd.

The two styles are basically identical, except that a spiral spring is used to hold the cover closed on the leather-bound model, while a more robust latch is found with the tortoise-shell finish. A further minor difference is that the engraved tuning scale on the tortoise-shell case, shown in Figure 3, is replaced by an ivorine label attached to the inside of the leather-bound set, as shown in Figure 4.

The Kenmac Book crystal set features slide-coil tuning with a linear tuning scale graduated between 0-100. The set covers the usual broadcast wave band, and a miniature double-socket on the spine enabled a long-wave loading coil, using a special pin supplied with the set, to be fitted for the reception of the BC's 5XX station. The detector is of the conventional galena/cat-whisker type, but, due to the severe space constraint, the detector arm is somewhat shorter than usual, making adjustment cumbersome. All of the fittings are brass.

The general construction of the Kenmac crystal set was of high quality for the period, and the set received a very favorable review in the September 5, 1925, edition of the British magazine Popular Wireless and Wireless Review. The journal did not, however, completely approve of the standard wording on the front cover, described as quite artistic; nevertheless, it was noted that the customized lettering should "... prove useful at Christmas" and that demand would likely be considerable.

The only real criticism was the perceived need for insulation on the detector arm and on the tuning slide, in order to prevent accidental shorting of the headphone terminals. Otherwise, the Kenmac was described as a first-class receiver.

The price of the Kenmac book in 1925 was two pounds, two shillings (£2.10) for the tortoise-shell version and one pound, one shilling (£1.05) for the leather-bound edition.

WITH THE COLLECTORS

A Superheterodyne Receiver — Anybody Recognize It?

BY DAN MERZ

I found the unusual radio shown in Figure 1 at a 1994 Puget Sound Antique Radio Association (PSARA) swap meet in Seattle, Washington. I had looked at this radio a month before the meet and decided to buy it because of the workmanship, quality and condition of the components which are in evidence in Figure 2, top view, and Figure 3, bottom view. I was hopeful that historical information on the set would emerge from my perusing old magazines and books.

I have submitted this analysis of the set to A.R.C. hoping that it will prompt a collector familiar with the circuit to share information with me and other readers. Perhaps someone with a set of call books or complete sets of Radio News, Radio, etc. could identify the set from an article. The issues from 1928 to 1930 would be the most likely sources of information. A summary of my examination and photos are provided below.

From the seller, Duane Blewitt in Gig Harbor, Washington, I located the previous owner, Norman Braithwaite, and I gave him a call in Redding, California. Not much luck. He had bought the set from a collector's estate in Auburn, Washington, and didn't know much about the origin or exactly what circuit or kit it was.

Four possibilities as to the origin of this set come to mind: 1. The builder was an avid metal worker in addition to being a radio buff. 2. The set was a laboratory test piece with extreme shielding. 3. The set was built as a prototype or novelty item. 4. The set was based on a published design with perhaps some minor modifications.

Clearly, this 8-tube radio is a superhet. Its block diagram is shown in Figure 4. The radio uses two RF stages, a local oscillator, a 1st detector, two IF stages, and a 2-tube 2nd detector stage. The RF stages employ Type 222 tubes. All other stages use Type 112A tubes.

FEATURES AND COMPONENTS

This superhet has a long list of impressive features. The RF amplifiers and 1st detector stages are shielded in separate aluminum compartments. Figure 5 provides a view of the RF stages. The tube shields are constructed of machined aluminum, and the shield for the Type 222 tubes has threaded caps. The 1st RF and 1st detector tubes use Carter rheostats for filament control and have self-contained D-size cells for grid bias.

Three small RF chokes are housed in individual machined shield cans. The RF coils are Silver-Marshall Types 116A and 119A used in the antenna and RF stage respectively, while a Silver-Marshall Type 10 is used in the local oscillator stage. Remler, butterfly-style, variable capacitors and vernier dials are used for tuning.

The two IF transformers, T1 and T2, are iron-core and operate at about 36 Kc. These IF transformers are contained in some deterioration. This was done in a way that did not detract from the original appearance of the set. The set operated quite well, and the four tuning stages tracked pretty closely by dial indication. The set covered the standard broadcast band from below 600 kHz to about 1600 kHz. The audio quality using a Radiola 100A speaker was quite good.

I used 135v on all the B+ terminals, -9v as the C voltage, 5 Vdc on the A supply terminals, and 45v on the screens of the Type 222 tubes. As might be expected, stations could be tuned at two locations on the dial, characteristic of sets with low frequency IFs. Careful measurement with a digital display receiver indicated that the oscillator shifted about 72 kHz between the two tuning points, which indicated an IF frequency of 36 kHz, somewhat lower than I had expected. Tuning the set was somewhat easier than I had expected because the dial indications were close to one another.

The third IF transformer, T3, appears to be a product of the Experimenter's Information Services (E.I.S.) and to be similar to the Type C-7 output coupler shown in Modern Radio Reception by Charles R. Leutz and shown here as Figure 7.

The Type 112A detector tubes are operated in parallel with a Samson Type 3 audio choke in their plate circuit. Capacitive coupling is used to operate a high impedance speaker.

A total of ten Tobe 1 mFd capacitors are used as bypass capacitors.

Initially, I believed that tube No. 6 was the 2nd detector and tubes 7 and 8 were audio amplifiers. But after I had observed waveforms with an oscilloscope, it became clear that tubes 7 and 8 function as detectors – a most unusual arrangement.

PERFORMANCE

I have operated the receiver after restoring some of the 1 mFd capacitors, which were the only components that showed

I would appreciate any comments or information regarding this set.

"Commander of the Air"

BY GERALD CROMER

Is the set pictured in Figure 1 another Mickey/Minnie Mouse radio? I got this set from a gentleman who had had it for 46 years. The tubes used in this AC/DC set are a 37 wired as a rectifier, a 38 audio output, a 77 detector/1st audio, and a 78 RF amp. The set uses a large power resistor to drop the 120 volts for the filament supply. The set utilizes the line cord as an antenna.

There is a picture of Mickey on both ends of the set. The only label is the one on the front that is mounted in an indentation by two screws. The label is too nice to be one-of-a-kind. It reads, "Commander of the Air"' — an obvious reference to the picture on the right side of the set, shown in Figure 2, in which Mickey has on a pair of flying goggles.

All the pictures are hand-painted. Also, all the pictures are very early Mickey Mouse.

I have been able to line up only one radio that has the same parts values. It is an Audiola Model 33T4, listed in Rider's 4-7. Does anyone know if Audiola made a metal lunch box like this one, and did the company make a Mickey Mouse?

Lorenz Identified

Dear Editor:

In the August A.R.C., page 13, a Lorenz "unknown" is depicted. It is the Model Köln from 1949, AC/DC, 110/220v. The tubes are the following: UCH5 (oscillator/mixer), UF6 (audion/IF), UL2 (output power pentode), and UY4 (rectifier). The tube filaments are in series at 100mA; the filament voltages are the following: UCH5 (20v), UF6 (13v), UL2 (35v), UY4 (35v), pilot lamp (7v).

I like your periodical!

Konrad J. Birkner, Haag, Germany

Soldering Article Good for Newcomers

Dear Editor:

The August issue of A.R.C. has a great 7-page article describing the equipment and the techniques for soldering. This well written and generously illustrated article was contributed by Daniel Schoo, who also happens to be a frequent contributor to the Internet newsgroup rec.antiques.radio+phono. It seems that there are often posts to this newsgroup from those who are interested in getting started in our hobby. This article is a good place to start for those who have little experience in the "art" of soldering.

Akradyne Info

Dear Editor:

Regarding Bill DeVries' query in the June issue about the Akradyne set — the only Akradyne I have listed in my personal data was produced by the Sunbeam Radio Sales Corp. of New York City. This company also produced a model named "Pink-A-Tone," ca. early to mid-1920s.

Grave Grunow News

Gernsback — Two Approaches

Dear Editor:

Please pass on to John Johnson (A.R.C. July 1996), the attached excerpt about Hugo Gernsback from page 73 of his brother Sidney Gernsback's Radio Encylopedia 1927. I have an original, autographed, bound copy. [A reprint is available from A.R.C. and others.] The brothers Hugo and Sidney were officers in a publishing company that produced all sorts of radio and electronic magazines and books. They were among the first to romanticize the publishing of radio and electronics articles, with a little zaniness to make it interesting. I read all the Gernsback papers I could get when I was a kid. I wish now I had kept them. They were not only interesting writers but also designers of some interesting circuits.

Alton A. DuBois, Jr., Queensbury, NY

Dear Editor:

Regarding John Johnson's letter about Hugo Gernsback, I can only repeat what Jerry said to Carl — "Shame on you for asking instead of thinking!"

In the 50th anniversary issue of Radio Electronics Magazine (October 1979), there is a 2-page biography of the founder, plus numerous sidebar tributes from the likes of Crowhurst, Davidson, Hertzberg, and Goldwater. Also, there is an obituary in the November 1967 issue. Both have photos, but the copy is worth reading as well.

I'm sure you'd rather peruse your Electrical Experimenters (or check your next month's proofs!). But, you must have a file of RC/RE. Go to the source!

Michael Harla, Vineland, NJ

As we state in the "Purpose" section of the the inside front cover of every A.R.C., "Antique Radio Classified is published...to provide a monthly forum for the interchange of ideas and information." Michael Harla has done just that in providing the above information. Our readership is a vastly larger resource of information than our own files. (Editor)

More on the Fada RN

Dear Editor:

I especially enjoyed the August 1996 A.R.C. Seeing the Fada RN radio on page 12 was incredibly coincidental. Three days before I received the magazine, I had purchased this set from a non-collector through one of my bulletin board ads.

Mine is identical to the one pictured, minus an adequate cleanup. It is exactly as described in your periodical, but the inside info gives it a model number — RN-7918.

Oddly enough, the radio came in a brushed suede carrying case, which the owner said was always with the set. I am not sure about this; however, the case is the exact size of the set.

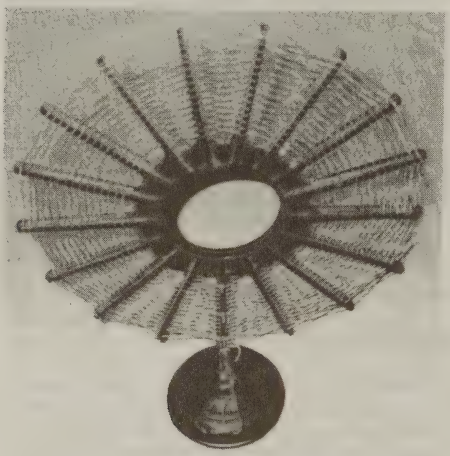
PHOTO REVIEW

This column presents in pictorial form many of the more unusual radios, speakers, tubes, advertising, and other old radio-related items from our readers' collections. The photos are meant to help increase awareness of what's available in the radio collecting hobby. Send in any size photos from your collection. Photos must be sharp in detail, contain a single item, and preferably have a light-colored background. A short, descriptive paragraph MUST be included with each photo. Please note that receipt of photos is not acknowledged, publishing is not guaranteed, and photos are not returned.



PARAMOUNT LOOP – This unusual loop antenna uses a Bakelite frame. It is about 15" tall and 12" in diameter, and all pieces are held together by wire. A tap bypasses about half the turns. The base is not original. (Richard Foster – Cochituate, MA)

PHILCO MODEL 50-524 (522) – Although a typical 5-tube, AC/DC circuit, this model is unusual in that it uses three different tube styles including octals (2), loktals (2), and one 7-pin miniature. In 1950, Philco must have had an excess of loktals and octals and was phasing in the 7-pin miniatures. (Ralph Michelson – Brighton, MI)

PHILCO MODEL 39-175 – This 4-tube battery set, ca. 1939, has 6 push buttons, and shortwave and broadcast bands. The cabinet veneer is in excellent condition. (Doris and Doyle Roberts – Clinton, AR)

ECHOPHONE EC-1 – This Echophone Commercial was one of a line of very low cost communications receivers made by Hallicrafters. An early 1940s, little AC/DC set, it has 3 bands and BFO, and uses tube Types 12K8, 12SK7, 12SQ7, 12J5, 35L6, and 35Z5. (Doug Buskey – Mansfield, OH)

AUTOMATIC MODEL 614X – This 1946 AC/DC superhet was manufactured by the Automatic Radio Co., Boston, Mass., and uses the following tubes: Types 12SA7GT, 12SK7GT (2), 12SQ7GT, 35L6GT, and 35Z5GT. The cabinet is brown Bakelite and features a rather unusual "starburst" dial. (Douglas Fox – St. Charles, IL

GIBLIN MANUFACTURING CO. MODEL UNKNOWN – Made in the early 1920s, this 1-tube set measures 5½" x 11" x 1⅛". Giblin of Pawtucket, R. I., is better known for its "Radioear" crystal set. (Ed Bell – Raleigh, NC)

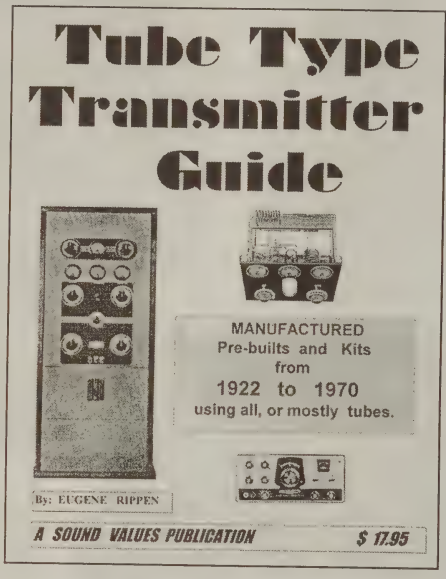
E.H. SCOTT COMMUNICATIONS RECEIVER – This hard-to-find 9-band radio, circa 1940, uses 26 tubes and a crystal filter. Its original price was $650. (John Meredith – Greenville, NC)

BOOK REVIEW

Tube Type Transmitter Guide, By Eugene Rippen

REVIEWED BY RAY BINTLIFF, K1YDG

Collectors of antique radios have a variety of reference books and price guides available to them. Communication receivers have also been documented, although to a lesser degree. But the vast number of amateur radio transmitters and transceivers have not been well documented. Now Eugene Rippen's Tube Type Transmitter Guide provides a wealth of useful information on the subject of transmitters and transceivers as well as some ancillary equipment.



Although the title suggests only tube type transmitters, the book's subtitle "Manufactured Pre-builts and Kits from 1922 to 1970 Using All, or Mostly Tubes" assures us that some hybrid transceivers are included.

An impressive range of transmitters and transceivers are covered from "Abbott" to "Yaesu." Approximately 100 manufacturers are listed. The earliest equipment covered is a Benwood Wireless Telephone from 1921. Some obscure and interesting gear is included. I was surprised to see that a 5-meter transceiver in my collection, a Chauncy Wing rig from 1934, was included in the book.

The equipment descriptions are arranged in alphabetical order by the manufacturer's name. Most, but not all, of the equipment is illustrated. The author acknowledges the cooperation of the American Radio Relay League (ARRL) in providing most of the photographic material used in the book. The reproduction quality of the illustrations is disappointing in what is an otherwise satisfactory book. Nevertheless, readers will find the illustrations useful as an aid to identifying equipment.

The descriptive material and illustrations are supplemented by four indices. These include a "MAKE then MODEL INDEX" that lists the make, model, year first produced, tube type used in the final stage and page number; a "MODEL then MAKE INDEX" that lists model, make, year and page; a "MODEL YEAR INDEX" that lists the year, make, model, finals and page; and a "TUBE TYPE INDEX" that lists the finals, make, model, year and page. These cross-references make locating a particular model and its associated information very easy. However, with only a few exceptions, it is necessary to consult one of the indices in order to determine the year in which a model was first produced. Had the author included the production date in the description of each model, the book would be much easier to use, and the reader would be saved a lot of page flipping.

The author has included a short, but informative, history of amateur radio, including some background information about Single Side Band (SSB).

Old timers will probably salivate and marvel at their original selling prices when they see their old rigs described. On the other hand, the book provides new collectors with a good introduction into the mysteries of older equipment. The author has written the introduction "with the consideration that the reader may have experience mostly with solid-state devices." New collectors may be amazed at the variety of transmitting tubes that were used over the years. Some of the older high-power transmitters are monstrous.

Little known manufacturers are listed, including Haigis Laboratories of Maple Shade, New Jersey, circa 1934, and Marmax Electronics located in Alamogordo, New Mexico, in 1952. As you might expect, the major manufacturers are well represented in the book, but you may be surprised at the number of rare items that are documented, such as the National TRM and TRW.

In addition to transmitters and transceivers, the book includes ancillary items such as linear amplifiers, converters, antenna matching units, modulators and VFOs. The book even describes a crystal oven.

The Tube Type Transmitter Guide is a good reference book that collectors have been longing for, but it is also fun to leaf through — either to reminisce or discover treasures from the past.

This 8½" x 11" softbound book contains approximately 150 pages and includes over 500 illustrations. The cover price is $17.95. It is available from Sound Values, PO Box 9, Auburn, CA 95604, A.R.C. and other suppliers. Be sure to check these sources for ordering information.

Transmitters, Exciters & Power Amplifiers 1930-1980, By Raymond S. Moore

REVIEWED BY RAY BINTLIFF, K1YDG

Raymond S. Moore's popular book Communications Receivers now has a companion publication that covers amateur radio transmitters and amplifiers. This latest effort, Transmitters, Exciters & Power Amplifiers, follows the format used in the 2nd and 3rd editions of Communications Receivers and consists of equipment shown in alphabetical order by manufacturer. The equipment described in this book was produced in the period from 1930 to 1980.

Moore's ground rules for including an item in this book are that it must have been manufactured in the U.S.A., must have been offered for sale to hams directly or through surplus channels, and must cover the HF bands.

Moore begins his book with a 5-page introduction that traces the development of transmitters, beginning with the basic 1-tube oscillator and ending with the application of solid-state technology in the "finals" of transmitters and transceivers. As Moore notes, not all of the changes in equipment resulted from technological progress — regulatory changes also accounted for some advances in equipment design and construction. This section of the book is a good primer for collectors with a desire to learn about the major milestones in the history of amateur radio.

Section II of the book contains illustrations and descriptions of equipment from about 120 manufacturers that range from Ace Radio Labs to Wholesale Radio Labs (WRL). Most, but not all, of the descriptions are accompanied by an illustration. The quality of the illustrations ranges from very good to fair.

This wide range of quality is not surprising when you consider the nature of the source material that was available to the author. Many of the halftones and line drawings taken from old magazines, manuals, catalogs and brochures were probably not of high quality even in their original state. However, the illustrations serve their purpose by enabling the reader to identify a piece of equipment readily.

The major manufacturers are well represented, and Moore has unearthed some obscure manufacturers. Do you remember Ace Radio Labs, Aero Products, Delft, Marmax, Neil or Web? They are in this book. And were you aware that Micamold (yes, the capacitor manufacturer) made a 3-tube transmitter in kit form?

Moore conserves space by using abbreviations in his descriptions. Fortunately, he provides a list of these abbreviations and their meanings, although the "Preface" states that they are not included. One attempt at conserving space may be a bit confusing to readers who are not familiar with the layout technique used in this and in his previous books. For example, sometimes an illustration will appear at the bottom of a right-hand page, but the accompanying description is located at the top of the following page.

Transmitters, Exciters & Power Amplifiers is another in a growing number of good reference books for collectors of ham gear. The book represents more than three years of effort by Moore. We are fortunate that he and others are so dedicated to our hobby.

This 144-page softbound book with over 500 illustrations is priced at $21.95. It is available from RSM Communications, PO Box 1046, Key Largo, FL 33037-1046, A.R.C., and A.R.C. advertisers. Be sure to check these suppliers for ordering information and shipping costs.

COMPARING THE MOORE AND RIPPEN BOOKS

In Raymond S. Moore's Transmitters, Exciters & Power Amplifiers and Eugene Rippen's Tube Type Transmitter Guide, collectors have two excellent sources of information about amateur radio equipment. The quandary — which book should I buy?

Although both books cover the same general subject, there are significant differences between them. Rippen covers the years 1922 to 1970, and Moore covers 1930 to 1980. Moore includes only U.S.-made equipment, while Rippen includes foreign products as well. Each book covers manufacturers not found in the other book. For a given manufacturer, some models can be found in one book but not in the other. Rippen includes an index and cross-references, but Moore does not.

Each book has something special. After some careful thought, the answer becomes clear — both books should be in your library.

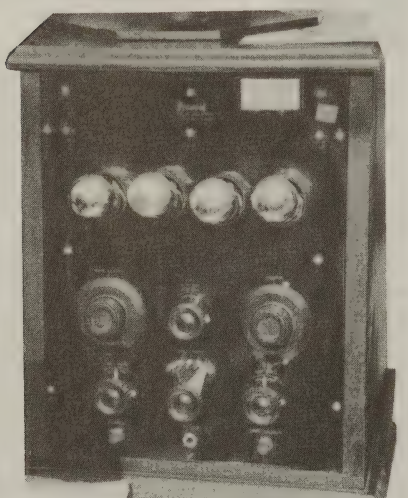
Mid-Atlantic Antique Radio Club Meet and Auction — Radioactivity '96 Timonium, Maryland — June 13-15, 1996

REPORTED BY LARRY BABCOCK
WITH AUCTION NOTES FROM PAT LINDFIELD AND STEVE SNYDERMAN

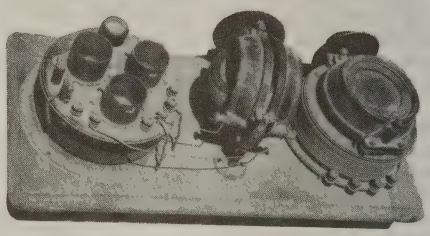
You bet I made it to Timonium, Maryland, to Radioactivity '96 this year. I haven't missed this June MAARC (Mid-Atlantic Antique Radio Club) event for quite a few years. This year it was held on June 13-15 at the Holiday Inn Timonium Plaza.

Scheduled to start at 6 P.M. Thursday evening, the 2-acre flea market actually started earlier. A lot of sellers were already set up when I arrived at 4:30 P.M. At many antique radio meets (such as Charlotte), the rule is no early selling, and none is allowed before early Friday morning. Here you could start whenever you wished, and this seemed to work out well. I would say about 30 to 40 percent of the more than 200 dealers were set up Thursday evening, and I did make a find then.

I did not plan to set up, but I did bring one radio I had recently found — a real basket case Atwater Kent Model 2 breadboard, the one with a variocoupler and variometer assembly plus a 3-tube cluster. I intended to take it to the Saturday morning restoration clinic for ideas on how to repair chipped Atwater Kent brown Bakelite and where to find replacement dial panel assemblies, etc.



This Federal Model 140, offered for sale at $599, appears to be the Federal Phonoradio made by Federal for sale by Gimbels.



This rusty, chipped and dirty, but very rare, authentic Atwater Kent Model 2 breadboard with both dial panels missing still attracted many offers.

But before I could carry it across the parking lot, people were swarming to look at it — this heavily rusted, chipped and dirty breadboard that needed everything! I explained that I had planned to keep it and restore it, but almost instantly I received an offer I could not refuse. So, now I don't have to attack a complicated restoration job.

There were some interesting items for sale, one of which was a Federal Model 140. Did you ever hear of a Federal 140? I must admit I had not, but it appeared to be a Federal panel radio installed vertically into a crude cabinet. The seller said the set was marked "Model 140" and "Serial No. 2" on a tag inside the box. Since panel sets were built for installation inside a mechanical phonograph cabinet, they were sold with no separate cabinet. The seller thought this cabinet was a genuine Federal, but it looked more crude than typical Federal boxes.

The only Federal panel radio I know with 4 tubes in a straight line is one the company made for sale

A warning: Auction prices are not current values. A listing such as this cannot adequately include the condition of cabinets, chassis, transformers, tubes, the operating status of the set, and the inclusion of incorrect, restored or replica components, etc. Auction prices are the result of the excitement of the auction process, the skill of the auctioneer and the specific interests of the participants. Nevertheless, auction prices serve as useful references and as another element in the value determining process. The possibility of error always exists, and if we are notified, corrections will be reported.*

A very nice Radiotron "Selling Fool" doll could have been yours. It was offered for $1,200.

by Gimbels called "Phonoradio." Maybe this was that set, as the panel layout looks identical to the Phonoradio pictured on page 209 of Alan Douglas' Radio Manufacturers of the 1920's, Volume 1.

With a serial number like 2, who knows what this set was used for. Maybe Federal did make a crude box to protect and display it, but I doubt it. Anyway the asking price of $599 was more than double what I paid for my panel sets. The only other Federal radio I saw was a Jr. crystal set in only fair condition, but it was the early one with all the patent information on the outside of the case.

Lots of early Radiola sets were offered for sale, including the Models I, II, V and X. The X had already been sold when I saw it, but the Model II was still available for only $200! The asking price for the Model V was $450, which also just happens to be the price listed in the latest Bunis book. The Radiola I was still available, but the asking price was $1,100 — wow!

For years I was only interested in the very early sets and had no need for the later Rider manuals; however, I eventually decided to acquire a full set. I obtained Volumes I to XIX easily enough, but have you noticed how hard it is to find XX through XXIII?

Among the other sets of note was a Western Electric Model 7A amplifier with the proper tubes for sale at $450. Remember when they were $100? A nice Westinghouse Model DB double crystal detector was selling for $400, but the cutest thing I saw was a home-brew voltmeter. It had a straight line 0- to 3-volt scale and was operated by a bent piece of tin can being pulled toward a magnetic coil with an iron core. I bet it still works.

One seller wondered whether his price of $100 was too high for a DeForest DV3 tube in the original round black and orange box. Buyers seemed to think that was a good starting price. Another seller had just the empty DeForest round tube carton in only fair condition for $35.

You know how sellers always want you to buy something? I told one fellow that I was looking for sets like Federal or Wurlitzer made in Buffalo. He pulled out a beautiful Wurlitzer table model shaped like a barn, and said he had spent the winter restoring it for entry into the contest.

What was interesting was that I had seen this same set for sale at a meet last year and considered it to be too much of a challenge for me. The front panel was completely separate from the rest of the cabinet and was badly split and warped. What a surprise now to see the same set completely restored and in beautiful condition!

There were also several Grebe Synchrophase radios in the flea market as well as a CR9 and some Tuskas and Kennedys. I noticed that Atwater Kent 10 breadboards were being offered by several sellers at just under $1,000. I do not consider them to be at all scarce, but they do seem to command a high price!

As always this was a well run meet complete with four formal seminars, a banquet, an auction and a contest. It is always worth the trip, and I hope to attend again next year.

THE CURTISS MUSEUM

On the trip home I stopped at the Curtiss Museum in Hammondsport, N. Y., to research the use of radio equipment in the JN4D (Jenny) aircraft during World War I. This is an excellent museum of very early aircraft and well worth the visit. I own many pieces of Jenny aircraft communication equipment but was unable to get more information during this visit. Perhaps I will later. I did pick up a Jenny pilot's manual and a model of the aircraft to display along with my radio artifacts.

THE AUCTION

The auction was much larger than expected with about 1,200 items in about 379 lots. One person came with a truckful. Although two hours had been anticipated for the auction, after four hours, it was still going strong. However, there were bargains galore, while valuable items didn't sell as they had done in the flea market. Sam Cannan was auctioneer.

The following is a selected list of items sold in the auction. Few conditions were listed.

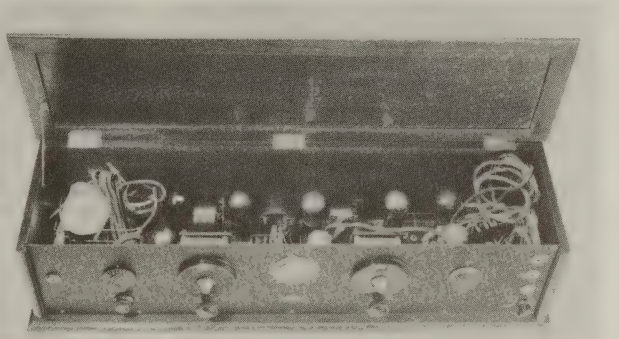
Old Technological Auction — A Specialty Auction of Early Radio and TV Technology Köln, Germany — June 7 and 8, 1996

BY JOHN V. TERREY WITH AUCTION NOTES FROM UWE H. BREKER

Auction Team Köln, in Köln, Germany, has been conducting specialty auctions for a number of years. The company's impressive, fully illustrated, color catalog lists items in many categories, including clocks, toys, photographs, sewing machines, bicyles, coin-op machines, office antiques, etc. The category of most interest to A.R.C. readers is the "Old Technology" auction, which includes old radios and televisions, largely of European origin. However, U.S.-manufactured items do appear, and we have listed here some of them from the June auction, plus some foreign sets of interest.



This Radione 8-tube, battery-operated superhet, ca. 1926, sold for $1,404.

Two major collections were offered in this sale. The first was Part 1 of an American collection with mostly 1920s sets. The second was Part 1 of the famous German collection of Gerhard Ebeling, the longtime editor of Germany's radio magazine Funkgeschichte.

This report was prompted by the curiosity readers expressed in Auction Team Köln's 2-page ad in the May 1996 issue of A.R.C. Many collectors wonder about this company's activity in our field. Your editor has attended several of the Köln auctions, not only for radios, but also for scientific instruments and early office equipment, such as calculators. His first-hand impressions of the Köln operation are all positive.

Attended by several hundred people from all over the world, the auctions are very well run. Since they are held in German, there is a language problem for some; however, the company does much to make communication easy.

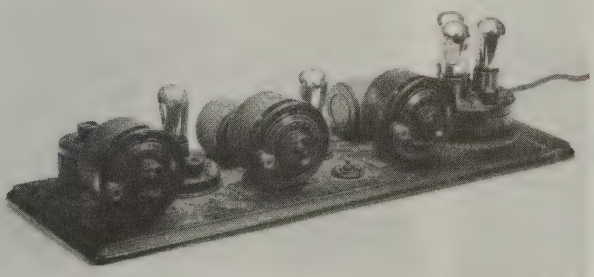
The Brekers, who own the company, and others on their staff speak English and are very helpful. All items are on display and can be examined prior to the auction. During bidding, a numeric board in the front of the hall displays the current bid. And although the catalogs are written in German, the excellent photos are accompanied by basic technical descriptions so that even a non-German-speaking person can get an approximation of the description. A minimum bid and an expected value range are listed for each item. Auctions are open to everyone worldwide, and absentee bids by mail or fax are encouraged.

Of the 1,070 total number of items offered over the two days at this Old Technology Auction, 310 were radio items. These went on the block on Friday afternoon, June 7, resulting in a remarkable sales rate of 98.4 percent. In other words, only 5 of the 310 lots did not sell. Although some items sold for from $20,000 to $30,000, most were under $500. An occasional item went for under $10.

The highlight of the sale was a Telefunken E5C selling at $23,400. Others were a Federal 61 at $2,340, a Kennedy 220 at $1,404, and a Radiola Grand at $1,794. Several Atwater Kent breadboards sold from $1,170 to $1,870.

Prices listed are in dollars using an exchange rate of 1 Deutsche-Mark (DM) = 65¢. Included are a 20 percent buyer's premium and local tax.

This auction is worth a trip abroad. Just attending and talking to people, or even browsing through the catalog, is an exciting experience.



This Atwater Kent Model 10C, ca. 1924, sold for $1,560.

Vacuum Tube Repair Wafers

These tube repair wafers are solid-state devices for quick and easy repair of early vacuum tubes. The wafer is installed by simply sliding it over the tube pins and reinserting the tube into its socket. If the filament is intact, but there is little or no emission, the filament may be lit for best visual effect. However, the tube can be open filament.

No change in radio operating voltages is required. Any number of tubes may be repaired in a radio. If wafers are installed on all tubes, the B+ voltage may usually be reduced without sacrificing volume or sensitivity. Performance will vary between radio models.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING POLICY

ONE FREE 20-WORD AD for subscribers in each issue; additional words are 25¢ each. See details below. Classified ads sent by mail, fax or by any other method must be received (not just postmarked!) by Noon Eastern Time on the classified ad deadline date to guarantee inclusion in the current issue. Late ads are held for the following issue. Please enclose correct payment with all ads. Stamps or cash are OK for small amounts. (Canadian and other foreign advertisers, please see "Payment" on page 2 for methods.) "Free words" cannot be accumulated from month to month; free words must be requested when ad is submitted.

Faxed & e-mailed ads: Please see additional information on the inside front cover.

When including ads with other A.R.C. correspondence, write the ads on a separate piece of paper. Include SUB# with ad. Ads may be sent in advance; but, write each ad on a separate piece of paper and indicate the month (or successive two months) you want the ad to run.

To minimize our typing errors: Please write legibly. Use both capital and small letters. Do not use a dash between words. Carefully write the following numbers and letters (especially in model numbers) since some can look alike; for example 1, l and I (the number one, the capital i and the small L.) Also: 0, O , o, Q and D; r and n; 6, b and G; V, U, u, v and Y; A and R; 5, S and s; 2, Z and z. We try to correct spelling errors, so when using an uncommon word or manufacturer which we might mistake as a more common word or manufacturer, note it so that we do not "correct" it. Editor's annotations are in [brackets].

Advertising is accepted only for early items related to radio, communication, etc. All items must be described fairly; reproductions, reprints and not-original items must be so identified. Advertisers must agree to respond promptly to inquiries and orders, to resolve problems promptly if the buyer is not satisfied, and to comply with a buyer's refund request on unaltered returned items.

The publisher reserves the right to edit ads without notification to the advertiser and to reject ads for any reason. Names other than the advertiser will be edited out of ads. Ads with non-radio-related items will be returned or edited unless the non-radio-related items are for trade of radio-related items, or they are incidental to and appear at the end of an otherwise acceptable ad. The publisher is not responsible for errors due to illegibly written ads or for any other reason.

Clubs: Since club activities receive free coverage on the Coming Radio Events pages, the free 20 words may not be used for club activity ads. See inside front cover for additional information.
